What the team receives

Clean sermon video A reviewable final cut from the full service.	Publishing package Titles, descriptions, chapters, captions, clips, social copy, and reusable church defaults.
Free sermon study A church-branded guide, 25 questions, saved progress, earlier studies, and optional new-study email.	Connected intelligence The same source can later support preacher evidence, research, sermon creation, and Salt & Light formation.

A free next step for the congregation

A visitor can preview the church-branded guide, enter a name and email once to save progress, receive a secure passwordless return link, answer one question at a time, and return to earlier studies from that church. Paid ministry tools remain separate until the user chooses to upgrade.

A fifteen-minute church pilot

Use one real service recording. The goal is to evaluate the actual weekly handoff—not a staged sample.

1	Bring the source	A recent service recording or YouTube link, plus the church's public name and links.
2	Review the result	Check the clean sermon, publishing copy, chapters, assets, and anything flagged for attention.
3	Open the public experience	Test the exact study link and QR code on both a phone and a computer.
4	Make the decision	Does the workflow save time, stay accurate after review, and extend the sermon usefully?

Use only the layer you need

Sermon Chopper The operations engine: trim, package, publish, and attach the public study.	Sermon Analyzer The preacher-intelligence layer: evidence, coaching, research, and better sermon creation.	Salt & Light The formation layer: private practice, study, follow-through, and consent-based care.

Human review remains part of the publish decision. Availability can depend on source-platform access, transcript quality, and configured services. Private member answers and formation records are not exposed as preacher analytics.
